YOU ARE WHAT MAKES CHECKPOINT® UNIQUE

Recognizing the diverse needs of each of our customers is key to the long-standing success of Thomson Reuters Checkpoint®, the industry leader for online tax and accounting information.

WE'VE DESIGNED CHECKPOINT JUST FOR YOU

Based on years of customer feedback and intelligent innovations, we've enhanced our solution to work the unique way you do.

Our new clean, modern layout is designed so you can navigate your way through Checkpoint quickly and easily. Find what you need faster than ever before, gain deeper insights and be even more effective in your business.

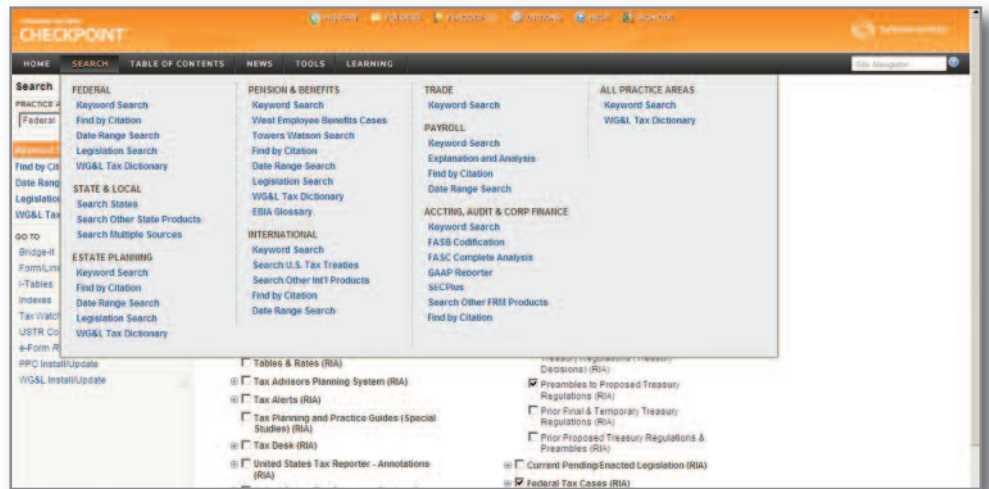

"The new Checkpoint enhancements are wonderful. They are subtle changes that improve my ability to customize the way I read, find and store my documents, but the changes do not change the fundamental searching function that I have become used to."

– Jennifer R., Attorney, Eckert Seamans Cherin & Mellott LLC

WORKING THE WAY YOU WORK

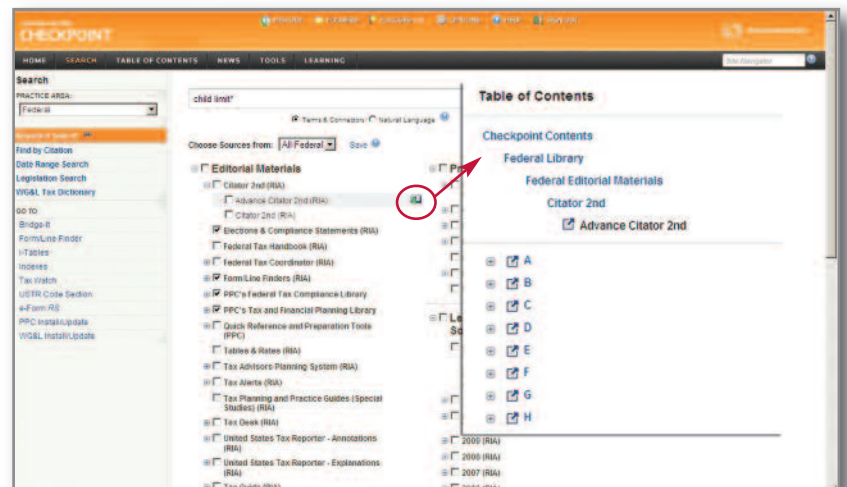

Checkpoint now gives you greater flexibility to help you efficiently get your work done through new features and controls that personalize your experience. Search using a variety of options, including new mega-menus, an enhanced table of contents and the ability to search by keywords or natural language. Then take your research to the next level by adding your own notes to documents and flagging them to quickly retrieve at another time.

Our new drop-down mega-menus help you quickly navigate to the search features, tools and news you need.

Our popular Table of Contents now has its own place in the toolbar for faster access to top research topics.

From your source selection, instantly open up the Table of Contents to see exactly what is in each database.

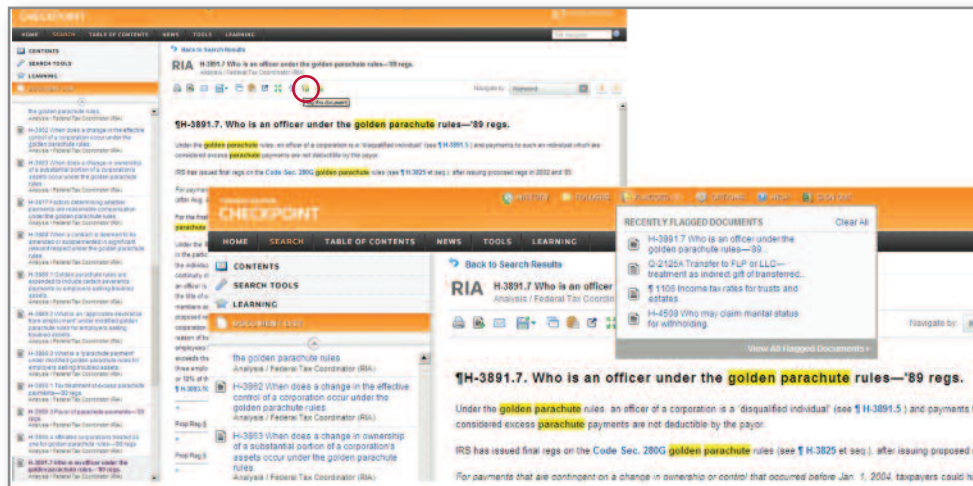

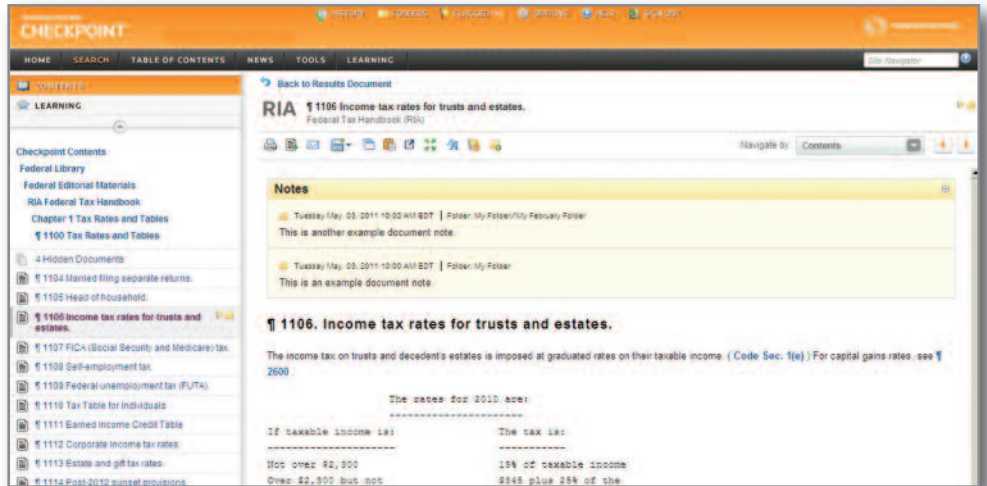

"It was easy to research items from multiple books."
 – Dom V., Partner, Wilder & Co.

"The enhancements are evolutionary, thus minimizing the learning curve. The ability to add notes to a document, and to flag a document, are what I like the most and should provide the most value. Adding notes to a document will lessen the time researching when accessing that document again, and it should help you to document your research quickly while reading the document. Flagging a document should be very handy to mark documents you'd like to read later, but don't have time to currently do so."

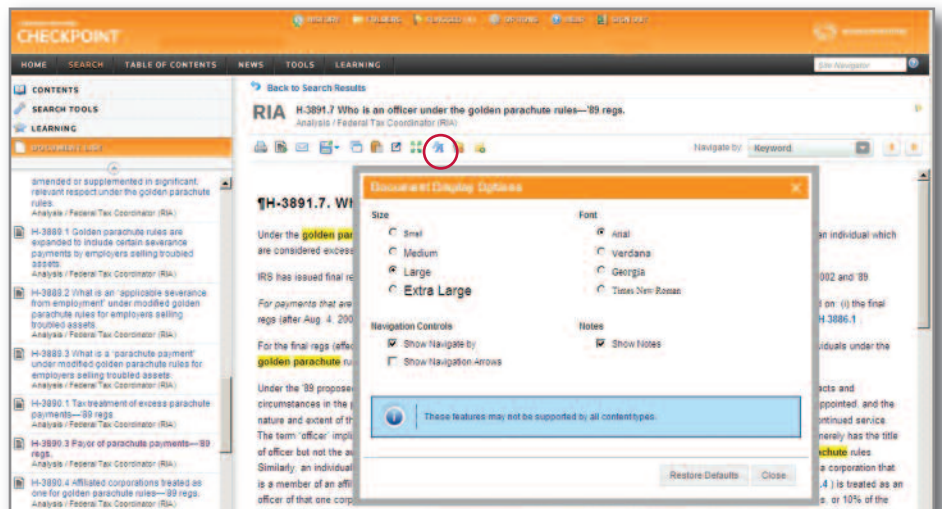

– Terry F., Director of Corporate Taxes, Kimball International, Inc.

Make your research easier and keep track of your work by writing notes directly into your documents. View your notes wherever the document appears, even in other areas of Checkpoint. Print, export, and email your notes along with your research.

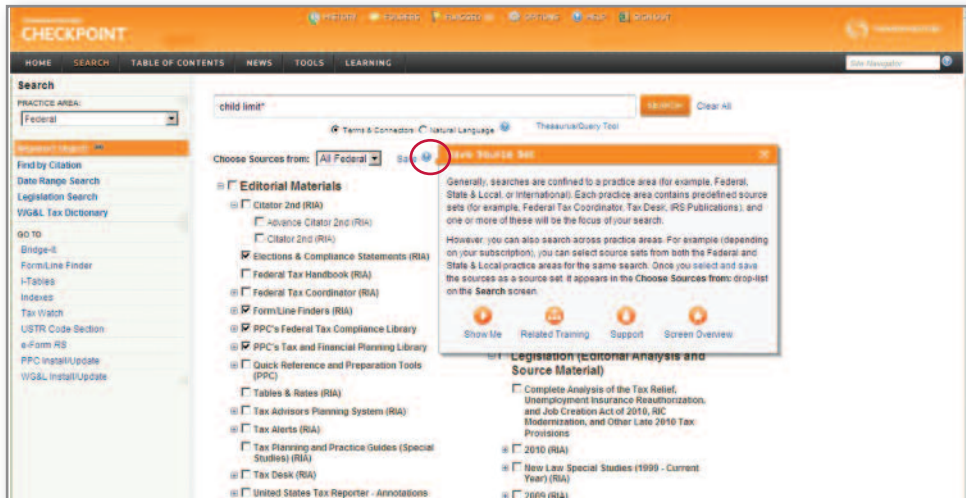

Flag documents of interest as you conduct your research so you can quickly retrieve them later, just like adding "Favorites" to your Web browser.

Control how you navigate in Checkpoint and view your research. Choose the navigation controls you want to see (or don't want to see). Even change your font type and size to easily read your documents.

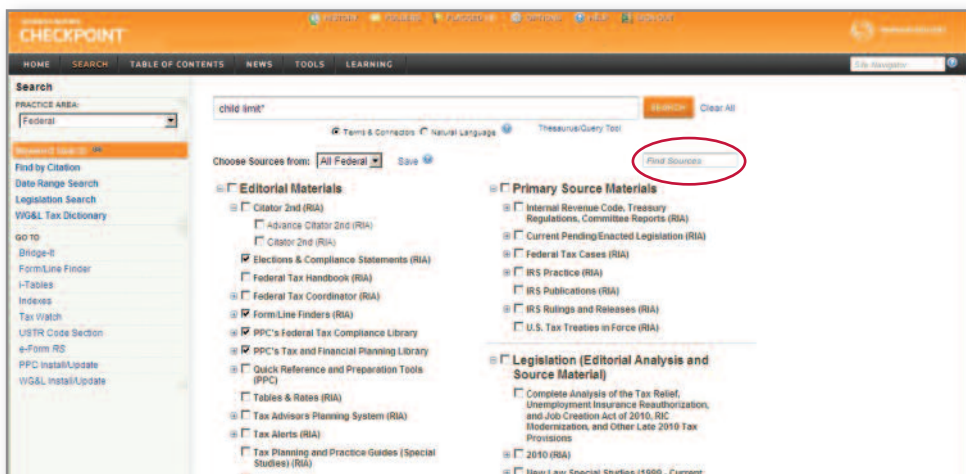

With Checkpoint you can take advantage of intuitive linking to source materials, analysis, forms, tools, related courses and our new guided-tour help options. We'll even tell you more about your sources so you can select the right one every time. This all means you'll be able to quickly locate everything you need to be fully informed.

Get help when you need it, where you need it, with our new help icons. Simply click the small "??" next to the topic you want to know more about and you'll see several new options, including:

- Show Me for a brief, guided tutorial
- Related Training for training on the topic
- Support for more help
- Screen Overview for more information about what is on the screen you are viewing

Speed through your research by quickly finding sources to include in your search.

"I really like the layout of the site - the icons and colors highlight frequently used areas. I also like the arrangement of the results - I can now browse through them quickly and easily."

- Jennifer L., Tax Librarian
